

Attention Idaho Licensees and Applicants

On April 8, 2026, the Idaho Department of Insurance received the following notice from the National Insurance Producer Registry (NIPR):

Security Notice

NIPR is aware of a phishing email targeting NIPR clients, licensing applicants, and administrators. These emails are about past due invoices and may appear to be sent from our domains: @nipr.com, @naic.org, or @stripe. Please note that these emails may not be from our company. If you receive a suspicious invoice email claiming to be from us, do not open any attachments, click on any links, or submit payment.

How to Identify a Fraudulent Email:

- Check the sender's email address: Fraudulent emails often use addresses that look like ours. Click on the domain name to unmask the vanity/fake domain, revealing the true sender.
- Look for generic greetings: Emails that begin with "Dear Customer" instead of your actual name or customer ID may be phishing attempts.
- Examine the tone and grammar: Phishing emails often contain spelling mistakes, unusual phrasing, or a sense of urgency to get you to act quickly.
- Hover over links (don't click): This reveals the actual URL and can help you determine if it's legitimate.
- Verify with us directly: If you ever receive an unexpected invoice or are unsure about an email's authenticity, please contact niprbillingdept@nipr.com.

We take your security very seriously and are actively working to stop these fraudulent emails. Thank you.

The Idaho Department of Insurance encourages anyone who has received an unexpected invoice or is unsure about the authenticity of an email from one of the above-listed email domain names to contact niprbillingdept@nipr.com.
